MONTPELIER.

Boy Who Ran Away from Industrial School Captured Yesterday.

Burt Osgood of this city, aged 17 years, who was some time ago sentenced to the state industrial school for the remainder of his minority, was captured yesterday by Sheriff Tracy and Deputy Sheriff Plunkett of Northfield, after having been away from that institution four weeks. The capture was purely accidental, though officers had been on the watch for him ever since his escape. While driving, they overtook a boy walking along the road and Sheriff Tracy invited him to ride. After he got into the sleigh, Sheriff Plunkett recognized him, and he was locked up to remain until he can be taken back to Vergennes.

The post office yesterday received the money order blanks it had so long waited for, and express money orders and registered letters will be in less demand.

Gilson R. Chambers of Pittsburg, Pa., manager of a large contracting firm in Waltham, Mass., and Miss Flora Hinkley of this city were married yesterday at the home of Mrs. Frank Felt by Rev. E. C. Downey of Barre. They left at once for Manchester, N. H.

The truckmen's union held its annual meeting last night and elected the following officers: President, George Huzell; vice president, C. H. Gilson; recording secretary, C. A. Smith; financial secretary and treasurer, Bernard C. Hersey; trustee, E. E. Dodge; delegates to the Central Labor union, W. I. Brown, G. A. Hill and Levi Alexander.

Montpelier council, K. of C., held its annual meeting last night and elected the following officers: Grand knight, H. T. Frenier; deputy grand knight, James M. Healy; chancellor, C. F. McKenna; recording secretary, J. E. Kennedy; financial secretary, D. T. Donnelly; treasurer, J. H. Kellier; advocate, W. N. Theriault; warden, J. L. Jerome; inside guard, L. L. Eusey; trustee for three years, Charles H. Reagan.

More Montpelier people are to join those already in Oregon, the latest to go being Edwin C. McGoff and Henry Thompson, who left last night, and are to report first to J. E. Davidson, manager of the Pacific Light & Power company, expecting to be stationed at North Yakima, Wash., where Mr. McGoff is to be superintendent of construction work. He was superintendent for the Corry, Davitt & Frost company here, while Mr. Thompson was employed by the Consolidated Lighting company.

What came near being a serious coasting accident happened yesterday, when a toboggan on which Leon Dennis and Wilfred Donnelly were coasting got beyond control and ran into a team driven by Irving Lane, who was carrying raw iron for M. Wright & Sons of Wrightsville. One wheel of the heavily loaded wagon passed over the Dennis boy's chest and one of the horses stepped on the wrist of the Donnelly boy, but neither was hurt enough to make the calling of a physician necessary. How they could have escaped with their lives is a mystery, with a two-horse load of iron above and a hard ground beneath. The driver was in no way to blame for the accident, for the sled was under the horse's feet before he had time to do anything.

A joint meeting of Court Montpelier and Court Green Mountain, C. O. F., took place last evening, and the former court elected the following officers: Court deputy, A. M. Cook; chief ranger, G. W. ## DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Barre Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Barre. Follow the advice of a Barre citizen and be cured yourself.

W. W. McAuley, 157 Seminary street, Barre, Vt., says: "I took all kinds of medicine supposed to be good for kidney trouble, but did not find relief. The pain in my left kidney was severe, and I could not stoop to pick up anything without having sharp twinges in the small of my back. I was very restless and arose in the morning feeling tired and miserable. Damp weather always made me worse, and finally I became so bad that I could walk only a short distance. It was then that I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from E. A. Brown's drug store. They helped me from the first, relieving the backache and strengthening my kidneys. I took in all the contents of three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and can honestly say that I never used any other remedy that benefited me so greatly."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Norman D. Lyford, an honored citizen of Cabot, died suddenly December 1 of heart failure. While loading wood at Lord's mill, near Lower Cabot, he suffered the attack and was dead before help could reach him.

Mr. Lyford was born in Cabot 67 years ago, November 3, 1843. In 1868, he went West and finally settled in Java, N. Y., where he was engaged in the mercantile business with a brother-in-law. Here he married, in 1870, Sallie Fox, who survives him. They had no children. Twelve years ago he returned to Cabot, to spend his last days. He was a member of Green Mountain lodge, F. and A. M., and the O. E. S.

The funeral was held from his late home Saturday, December 3, Rev. F. E. Currier and Rev. D. L. Hilliard officiating, with interment in the village cemetery. The bearers were E. B. Waldo, R. H. The sympathy of the community is extended to the husband. Funeral services were held Friday, Rev. F. E. Currier officiating. Her remains were carried to East Hardwick for burial.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

A Police Play Is "Alias Jimmy Valentine," In Barre Dec. 15.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," the play about the bank burglar who opens safes by the mere sense of touch in the tips of his fingers, and plies his romantic trade in the dead of the night, with a handkerchief bound around his eyes, the better to keep out the distracting light, has won the approval of everybody who has seen it except the police. The comedy drama has been the subject of critical praise almost to the fulsome point. But the police—

In the play, which, by the way, comes to the opera house on Thursday, December 15, Doyle, a detective, who has for three years followed Jimmy, to jug him for an old bank break, witnesses said James open a safe by touch, but as Jimmy does this to release a little child who has wandered into the vault and been caught, and as the little child's sister is standing by approving Jimmy, why—Mr. Doyle, he lets Mr. Jimmy go free. And so—

Mr. James McCafferty, inspector in charge of the detective bureau in New York, disapproved, and orders were quickly passed that the lieutenants, first grade detectives and all others connected with the bureau were to stay away from the play during its engagement at Walden, the reason that it showed an officer of the law letting a criminal go.

Chiefs of Police all over the country are taking a most active interest in Lee Randall, "Alias Jimmy Valentine," in consequence of a circular which has been sent broadcast, describing this famous bank robber and offering a reward of $5,000 for his capture. Hundreds of replies have been received, each worded as follows and signed by the chief to whom the notation was sent: "I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your circular of recent date, relative to Lee Randall, 'Alias Jimmy Valentine,' and to inform you that inquiries are being made for him. Should any trace be obtained, you will at once be communicated with."

These responses have come from all points. Liebler & Co., having received one from a gentleman signing himself "Ex. No. 2751," which is a criticism on the costume worn by Jimmy in the first act of "Alias Jimmy Valentine." This correspondent writes: "Why do you have Jimmy Valentine and the other prisoners wear stripes? Don't you know there are no stripes at Sing Sing? I do."

Mr. Paul Armstrong, the author of the work, refuses to stand corrected. His explanation is that while the present convict garb at Sing Sing is a nifty indeterminate gray, such as any gentleman might wear, in perfect taste, three years ago the stripe still were in vogue. And the first act of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" occurs three years ago, so the programme is careful to point out.

OPPORTUNITY OF GRANGE

Is Being Neglected Says St. Lawrence Professor.

I am sorry to see the Grange, the most potent agency possessed by the farmer to-day, passing daily its most urgent problems without even discussion, writes Dean Herbert E. Cook of St. Lawrence university in the New York Tribune Farmer. Is it possible that Grange limitations are so thoroughly fixed through long established custom that no other organization must arise to take up other work than social problems? The Grange has done a great work in remodeling the social and educational life of our country homes. Providential-like, it seemed to come among us with almost a religious atmosphere, surrounding it. I wish the reader would stop a moment and reflect upon this last statement, because it may be the solution of the lack of readiness to take on purely business problems.

For years the order has taught the children within its walls to hold only to those things that are educational from an academic standpoint. The Grange is an eastern institution, and so—like our thoughts and movements—very conservative. I have soiled and fretted, talked and written because the Grange did not take part in the business regeneration of the farm; others have done likewise with about equal results, which leads to a conclusion that there are certain unwritten laws that are engraved upon the order that may savor of the teaching in my early days on the immutability of laws governing the Modes and Persians. I am learning daily that restrictions and limitations surround every man and every institution. There are rules and laws which experience and expediency have placed upon their books which cannot be repealed without a revolution, and so I query: Will we have to build another machine to organize the present business needs of the farmers?

Our methods of co-operation are crude; they are practically undeveloped. The great gap between producer and consumer has never received the first cultivation from the farmer, who is the most concerned. I saw recently a most significant statement in the Rural New Yorker, that a man who paid $4 for a barrel of apples found a statement in the barrel signed by the seller that he received 75 cents for the contents. Of course, this acknowledgment would seem to warrant the statement that he was a poor salesman. Nevertheless, we know that here is a field which needs the finest business fidelity that the country affords. As a class we are wholly out of touch with the people who use our products.

This is not ranting or denouncing the middleman. He is at present a very useful and necessary factor in our business, and really, if he should suddenly step out, we should be almost hopelessly stranded. He is in possession of all the machinery for distribution, and we are presently adjusted to it. If we are to make any changes they must be taken up from their organic base, and we must learn, put into practice and have it as a second nature just what our captains of industry learned years ago, namely, that the machinery of production and distribution must be related. Years have been required to bring it about, but they have succeeded, and wealth flowed accordingly. The organic base just mentioned is the establishment upon each farm and in each community of those simple means of co-operation, like a knowledge of each cow, her capacity and profit; of each field, the yield and cash balance; and then to have inaugurated a systematic scheme of neighborhood or community breeding, whether it be plants or animals, so that the locality would be reputed for some one thing of superior quality which would be attractive to buyers, and that is the object of this article.

Must we have another agency than the Grange to construct this new business order? Will the schools and colleges teach it? Will it come from a federation of business men who are rapidly becoming interested in land and crops, or must some genius arise who will develop an entirely new system of organization, having in mind some business methods of co-operative production and distribution? The butter and cheese factories are practically the only genuine co-operative business having any breadth or scope, except the fruit organization of the Pacific slope and an occasional local association. I realize that such generalizing as this article does not become very effective. It may be only the expression of an opinion, and never sink very deep into the minds of men. I know, as every one knows who is at all familiar with things done, that hand-to-hand and face-to-face methods are the only ones that count. It is the house-to-house canvass that wins in a campaign.

Probably the cow test association is the nearest to becoming a real leader in starting the work of community breeding. We have such an association near us in successful operation. The logical outcome if it is perpetuated will be to unify methods. The cows will naturally follow lines of breeding of those showing up the best profit. Men will not continue to pay the cost of testing and not profit thereby. They will do better or quit. Continued good feeding and care will as surely follow as improved breeding; in fact, they are not generally separated, and then when buyers are looking for stock they will know where to go. I am in receipt of letters frequently asking where fine grade stock can be bought in considerable quantities. It is always hard to answer. About the only reply that can be given is: Start out and drive until you find or do not find what you want.

This inquiry is especially true of Ayrshire stock, for certified milk production, or for good milk for any place or market. These cows are vigorous, economical producers, and produce milk higher in fat than the Holsteins, but lower than the Jerseys. It seems to me to be unfortunate for the milk business, as a whole, that more of these beautiful, hardy cattle have not been produced. Of course, some fads have been perpetuated, like color and horns, that have no relationship to milk production, but this does not greatly interfere with the general statement that most breeds have suffered from the notions of their friends.

Here is a chance for community breeding. High-class Ayrshire bulls can be bought at less price than Holsteins having equal breed value. They will not breed phenomenal cows. The 100-pound cow will not appear, but she does not often show up among the milking herds of Holsteins. There will come, however, good wholesome cows, capable of 6,000 to 10,000 pounds of milk under full feed, at a lower cost of production in my opinion, than with the Holsteins, especially where it is necessary to produce a higher percentage of solids than average Holstein milk contains. Well, the breed is neither here nor there in this article. I am interested in community work, and propose to do what I can to stimulate and start work of this sort in New York.
